Dear Ms. Marlene H. Dortch,

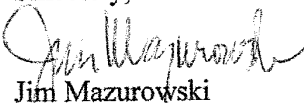

GraphicMark provides creative design, and printing services that help companies increase the identity of their products, enhance their image and attract their targeted audience. Our company is based in Chicago area and has been able to increase our clientele into several states.

Our company relies upon web-based communication to conduct our daily business. Broadband internet service has allowed our company to meet the needs of customer by facilitating quick turnaround and prompt responses on products and services. We consistently send large files that require a network and system that can handle the files in an efficient and timely manner. Increased competition in the broadband field would likely improve service and decrease the overall costs.

Increased access to broadband at an affordable price would ensure that all of our customers have the technological ability to handle large graphic files. It would also allow my business to take advantage of expanded online marketing opportunities and grow our customer base. An additional benefit of competitive broadband service would be to free up limited financial resources to use in other areas of our business.

I understand that there is a new company LightSquared that operates a new nationwide open wireless broadband network. Their work is consistent with the Federal Communication Commission statement that broadband can serve as a cornerstone of economic development. As an independent business this new broadband provider would be a benefit to my company, my customers and the entire business community of which I am involved.

Sincerely,

Jim Mazurowski

President
